

FEAR SEVEN ABOARD SLOOP ARE LOST

PROMOTE FRED JONES TO POLICE CAPTAIN

Will Have Charge At Night; Succeeds Thompson

Promotion of Patrolman Fred Jones to the captaincy of the Xenia police department, a position left vacant by the resignation Monday of Capt. Charles Thompson, was announced Wednesday by Police Chief O. H. Cornwell.

Capt. Jones, now the senior ranking member of the police force, will have charge of the night shift.

The newly-appointed captain has been a member of the force for about eleven years. His service has not been continuous. Several years after he was appointed originally as a patrolman, he quit the force for five months and then rejoined the department.

Two vacancies exist as a result of the resignations of Capt. Thompson and Patrolman J. E.

CAPTAIN FRED JONES

Craig, and these will be filled through a civil service examination to be held soon.

Scientist Seeks Cosmic Rays Soaring In Balloon

BERGENZ, Germany, May 27.—A mere pin-point in the sky, the free balloon carrying Prof. Auguste Piccard on his exploration of the mysteries of the stratosphere, floated over Lake Constance and into Switzerland this afternoon. The balloon was floating in a southwesterly direction at a tremendous height.

A short while later, drifting with the wind, the balloon was taken back in an easterly direction. At 2:15 p. m. it was sighted over Schongau near Munich.

Sighted over Schongau, the balloon was at a considerably lower altitude. It was believed Prof. Piccard was preparing to land.

The professor, who was accompanied by Dr. Charles Kipfer, his associate at the University of Brussels, was sealed in an aluminum gondola suspended from the huge sphere, in which he intends to ascend to a height of 50,000 feet. With them, they carried a plentiful supply of oxygen.

In the brilliant sunlight that presaged fine weather for the flight, the balloon and its swinging gondola appeared to be two huge silver balls, suspended in the air.

First a towering mass, then a "toy balloon" and at length the merest pin-point in the limitless blue, the silvery craft's progress through the skies was watched throughout the morning by thousands of Bavarians. Only a handful of persons witnessed the actual start, but news that the long-awaited attempt had gotten under way quickly spread throughout the countryside.

Prof. Piccard started out this morning confident that the perfectly calm weather prevailing would enable him to rise ten miles above the earth in an attempt to obtain data on the origin of cosmic rays, which were discovered by the American scientist, Prof. Robert A. Millikan, several years ago.

Extraordinary precautions were taken by the scientists to permit them to live in the extremely rarified atmosphere of the far reaches of the skies.

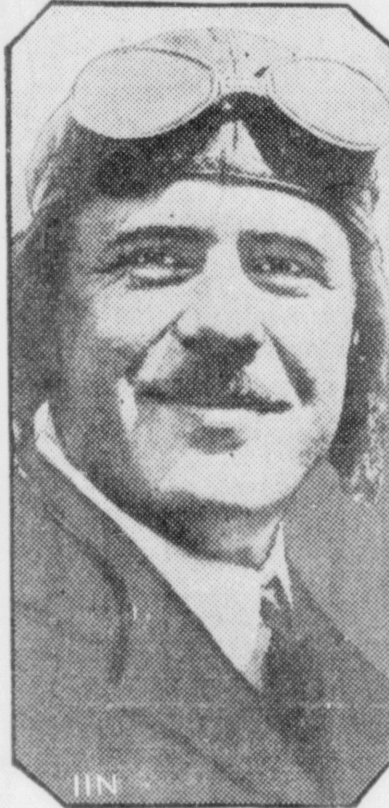

The aluminum ball in which Prof. Piccard and his assistant sealed themselves before the take-off is seven feet in diameter. It is equipped with delicate meteorological and astronomical apparatus as well as a device enabling the scientists to keep the air within the pressure they desire to permit easy breathing.

Prof. Piccard intended to maintain a pressure of 0.6 atmospheres, while at an altitude of 50,000 feet the outside pressure probably was not more than 0.1, insufficient to sustain human life.

Among those in Germany who waited with keen interest the result of the expedition were scientists working on so-called "rocket planes," designed for tremendous speeds through the upper reaches of the air where resistance is negligible.

Prof. Piccard's journey, if successful, they believed, would prove the feasibility of maintaining human life indefinitely by artificial means in the stratospheric areas.

PILOT IS KILLED

In 1927, Shirley Short, above, who, with three others, was killed when the Chicago Daily News plane, which he was piloting, plunged 1,000 feet to the earth, near Wheaton, Ill., during a test flight, was presented with the Harmon trophy by President Coolidge, for his flight record of 2,157 hours. For his feat he was called "the world's most valuable air pilot."

HIGHER PRICES FOR GOODS REQUIRED TO IMPROVE BUSINESS

Farrell Says World Has Gained From Depression

NEW YORK, May 27.—Higher prices for goods is an "essential requirement" toward improving business conditions, James A. Farrell, president of the United States Steel Corporation, declared in an address today opening the three-day convention of the National Foreign Trade Council, of which he is chairman.

Mr. Farrell's subject was "The World Trade Outlook Today," and in masterly fashion he discussed the economic difficulties that are confronting nations all over the globe, including the United States. He contended that, regardless of the trade losses sustained in the past two years, the world has "gained materially by the chastening discipline of hard times."

"An essential requirement of the present economic situation is an advance in commodity prices," said Farrell. "When prices fall, buyers withdraw from the market. It is rising prices that stimulate buying and consumption, and a return to prosperous times. Anything, therefore, which tends to postpone recovery in commodity prices, more especially those influences which are unfair and un-economic in character, should be discontinued at the present time."

About 2,000 business men have registered for attendance at the convention. They will hear speeches by scores of bankers, diplomats and government officials on foreign trade problems and prospects. The convention will adjourn Friday night with a dinner.

Mr. Farrell, in his speech, took up country by country and discussed trade relations with America. The general tone of his statements was optimistic. Discussing post-war conditions he declared that, as a creditor nation, the United States has done much in aiding in the rehabilitation of other countries, including the cancellation of more than $5,000,000,000 foreign debts.

"The problems of European countries would be much more critical today, were it not for our readiness to absorb the thirteen million immigrants who landed in the United States between 1900 and 1914, and the millions who followed at the end of the war," said Farrell. "When we estimate the causes of our unemployment, including excess immigration, and our responsibility to the world as a creditor nation, we should not overlook the part our country is now playing in carrying a large share of Europe's burden of unemployment."

BLAMES SPEECH

His speech a year ago in India to Mahatma Gandhi is given by Prof. Herbert A. Miller, noted sociologist, top, as the reason why his contract at Ohio State University, Columbus, was not renewed. Dr. Miller's recent words against compulsory military training for Ohio State students were used as a pretext for his dismissal, he maintained. President George W. Rightmire, below, has declined to comment regarding the university's action.

MILLER DISMISSED BECAUSE OF BOMBAY SPEECH SAYS BOARD

Tended To Incite Hindus Trustees Of O. S. U. Claim

COLUMBUS, O., May 27.—Answering protests against the dismissal of Dr. Herbert A. Miller, outspoken sociology professor, trustees of Ohio State University today based their defense on the declaration that Dr. Miller's teachings on race questions were widely unpopular with students' parents.

Declaring that the recent campaign against compulsory military drill, in which Miller was a leader, was in no way responsible for the action, trustees said the "innocent little speech" the professor said he gave in Bombay in March, 1929, was not as harmless as he says.

"There is evidence that he said a great deal more" than he has related, the trustees said in a statement which was issued for the first time last night by President George W. Rightmire.

"Here was an American professor, an employee of the university of a state whose nation was at peace with Great Britain, helping to incite the Hindus to civil disobedience," the statement charged.

Dr. Miller, who has admitted addressing a crowd at Bombay during Mahatma Gandhi's salt march, in an attack on the university administration earlier yesterday declared that the speech was "true but trite" and that dismissal on that ground "would be absurd."

"From his very first year here, complaints were received from parents of students about his teachings," according to the trustees' statement.

Action by the trustees in ordering his dismissal was not hasty, the statement continued.

"As long ago as 1927 serious questions arose in the board about re-engaging him because of these increasing complaints," it was explained.

BODY OF PASSENGER IS WASHED ASHORE; WEATHER IS BLAMED

Identify Body As Owner's Wife; Party Gone Three Days

NEW YORK, May 27.—Slight hope for the safety of a party of seven New Yorkers on the sloop Sea Fox, caught in thick weather on Long Island Sound, was held today. The body of a woman washed ashore at Darien, Conn., was identified this morning as Mrs. Marcia Snedden, 24, known to have been a member of the yachting party.

Mrs. Snedden was the wife of Donald Snedden, owner of the sloop and an associate professor of psychology at the school of education, New York University. He was among the missing.

The Sneddens and their friends left late Saturday night or just before dawn Sunday morning for a sail. Alarm was felt for the party's safety when the body of a woman was found on the beach near Darien. Late a brother of Mrs. Snedden identified the body as that of his sister.

The missing in addition to Snedden were:

Mark Coyne, 28, artist and instructor.

Robert Mendenhall, 29, an employee of the statistical bureau, Columbia University.

Florence Mendenhall, 29, Mendenhall's wife.

Robert Johnston, 30, radio entertainer. Miss Doris Dewey, 29, psychiatrist attached to the Girls Service League.

Investigators said they believed the sloop was blown to sea in a near gale on Saturday night or founded in the sound. A life-belt was around Mrs. Snedden's body when it was washed ashore. A report that Miss Adelle Ryan, granddaughter of the late Thomas Fortune Ryan, financier, was in the party, was denied today by her brother. Some doubt existed as to whether Johnston was among the missing, but his friend, William Soskin, a writer, said he knew Johnston had been on the sloop.

Mrs. Coyne was to have joined the party but was ill. Snedden's father, David, a former state education commissioner of Massachusetts, is a professor of education at Columbia.

George B. Pegram, head of the department of physics at Columbia and a friend of the Sneddens and Coyne, said the Sea Fox was a fast boat with a sturdy motor. He doubted the theory that the sloop had foundered.

SYNTHETIC ISLAND PLANNED AS RESORT

WASHINGTON, May 27.—Atlantic City is destined to have a competitor as the "nation's playground."

If the plans of Edward R. Armstrong materialize an artificial island will float in the Atlantic 250 miles off the Jersey coast and although it will display the American flag, its attendants will serve liquor if its guests prefer, and will "go as far as Reno, Nev., in the gambling line."

"The seadrome would be subject to American protection in case of need, just as any American private property in the Sahara Desert or elsewhere would be subject to that protection," Armstrong told reporters today. "But neither state nor federal American laws nor those of any other nation, would be applicable on the structures (the seadromes) as long as their operations are free from practices which would shock the conscience of mankind."

"Butterfly" Here

Yoshiko Miyakawa, (above) pretty Japanese opera singer, who has achieved fame through her beautiful rendition of "Madame Butterfly" will reach the homes and hearts of the American people this summer via radio. She has come on a visit to the United States under contract to make several appearances before the "mike."

JUST FOR THRILL!

CLEVELAND, May 27.—Just for the thrill of it, Ray Woods, 24, diving ace of St. Louis, today became the first person to make a deliberate and successful leap from the top of the 110-foot Detroit-Superior high level bridge here. Woods, clad in a bathing suit, plunged from the span into the murky waters of Cuyahoga River below and swam ashore unscathed.

MAYORS PUT WREATH ON SOLDIER'S TOMB

PARIS, May 27.—In a simple but impressive ceremony, the group of twenty-one American mayors visiting France as guests of the government placed wreaths on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier beneath the Arc de Triomphe today.

The mayors, who stood with heads bowed as Mayor Baker of Portland laid a wreath on behalf of the American Legion Post, Mrs. Bryce B. Smith, wife of the mayor of Kansas City, then decorated the tomb with a wreath donated by the American gold star mothers, a delegation of whom have come to France to visit the battlefields and the graves of their sons who fell in combat.

When the ceremony was over, the mayors and their wives proceeded to the Hotel De Ville (City Hall), where an official reception was tendered them. They lunched at the building as guests of the Paris Municipal Council.

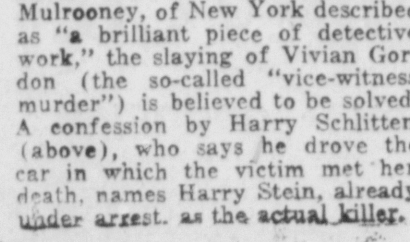

RELEASE PRISONERS

COLUMBUS, O., May 27.—In order that they might have their freedom on Memorial Day, Warden P. E. Thomas today announced that three days would be cut off the terms of fifty-seven prisoners scheduled to be paroled from the Ohio Penitentiary on June 1.

TREASURY BALANCE

WASHINGTON, May 27.—Treasury balance as of May 25, $100,566,128.47; expenditures, $11,018,847.11; customs receipts $23,617,065.23.

Names Slayer

After what Police Commissioner Mulrooney, of New York described as "a brilliant piece of detective work" the slaying of Vivian Gordon (the so-called "vice-witness murder") is believed to be solved. A confession by Harry Schitten (above), who says he drove the car in which the victim met her death, names Harry Stein, already under arrest, as the actual killer.

U. S. RECOGNITION OF RUSSIA REVIVED BY BORAH ADDRESS

Needed To Increase American Trade Says Senator

WASHINGTON, May 27.—The issue of recognizing Russia was revived today by Senator Borah (R) of Idaho, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, as a result of his appeal in a radio interview, nationally broadcast, for an immediate American trade agreement with the Soviet Republic.

American recognition of the Soviets, Borah told his radio audience, would have little effect on Russia but would increase American trade with the Far East. He termed Russia the "most stupendous reality in international affairs."

Answering questions of his radio interviewer, Borah also endorsed the Stimson policy toward South American and Pan-American nations, termed the world court but an administrative agent for enforcement of the Versailles treaty, and expressed hope of real land disarmament at the coming Geneva parley. He blamed the dispute over the proposed German-Austrian trade agreement, the naval race between France and Italy and the Russian question as barriers to real disarmament.

Borah was insistent that the Hoover administration recognize Russia. He pointed out that Germany and Italy had negotiated trade agreements with the Soviets, netting their industries huge profits, while another Italian, a Polish, a Finnish and a French commission were enroute or about to visit Russia to negotiate other contracts.

"We could safely absorb some of that trade," Borah observed. "It seems we need that trade and it seems too that the American people are strong enough in mind and character to take a chance on Communist propaganda in order to get that trade."

In approving the administration's new policy toward nations to the south, Borah said Secretary of State Stimson had enunciated a correct interpretation of the Monroe doctrine. He said this doctrine did not give the United States the right to impose its own ideas and policies on Latin American countries but merely applied when some European government attempted to take control of a nation in the Western Hemisphere.

As for the coming Geneva disarmament parley, Borah said: "Those participating in the conference may agree upon some program of study, some paper maneuver, such as the League of Nations has been giving us for twelve years on this subject. But for any real disarmament, the difficulties seem very great."

FAMILY ROBBED OF $15,000 IN JEWELS

CHICAGO, May 27.—Jewels valued at $15,000 were taken today from the home of John Landis, investment broker, by six armed and masked men who lined up the whole Landis family, including Mr. and Mrs. Landis, George Jackson, the chauffeur, two maids, and two small children.

Mrs. Landis and her chauffeur were accosted by the bandits as they were putting the car in the garage and were admitted to the house by Landis.

When Landis bought the house two years ago from former Chief of Police Fitzmorris he made an appeal to bombers not to molest him, as they had the chief.

VATICAN AND MUSSOLINI ARE AT ODDS ON WOMEN FASCIST GROUPS

ROME, May 27.—With tenseness already reported existing between the Italian government and the Vatican because of charges and counter-charges of intimidation, violence and interference on the part of church and Fascist organizations, a new conflict loomed today on the question of women's attire.

An unfavorable pronouncement was expected to be made by Pope Pius XI against the order of Premier Benito Mussolini decreeing immediate formation of women Fascist groups throughout the country. His order directed them to parade in a uniform consisting of breeches, black woolen stockings, leggings, a black shirt and an alpine felt hat.

On several occasions, Pope Pius has expressed himself in no uncertain terms on the subject of modesty in women's dress and is understood to be particularly opposed to women appearing in costumes of the sort ordained by Mussolini.

One of the most crucial conflicts between the Pope and Il Duce took place over the participation of women in athletic contests, which was one of the great movements of the Fascist regime. His holiness voiced his objections against women's participation in sports and directed considerable criticism against the costumes worn by girls and young women in the mass athletic drills which form part of the Fascist program.

Pope Pius has inveighed against women attending church in "flimsy, immodest costumes," and has insisted they keep their heads and worship.

His pronouncement against the women Fascists is expected to be made as soon as the first "knickerbocker" women appear in public.

The Vatican issued an official statement today branding as false the charges made by the Fascist newspaper, L'Avanti, that the Azzione Cattolica, an organization of Catholic youth, was working against Fascism.

THIRTY-THREE ARE READY FOR RACES

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 27.—With thirty-three entries already qualified, today was to see the last ten-mile trials for the 500-mile Memorial Day race.

The race is limited to forty starters so only seven can still qualify.

Yesterday's trials were marred by the death of Joe Caccia, Bryn Mawr, Penn., and his mechanic, Clarence Grove, of Haverford, Penn.

Lou Meyer, South Gate, Calif., winner in 1928, was high speed man in yesterday's trials, traveling 113.52 miles per hour in his Sampson Special.

DEAN RESIGNS

WILMINGTON, O., May 27.—After serving two years as dean of women at Wilmington College, Miss Elizabeth M. Garland, formerly a teacher at Springfield High School, has resigned to continue studies in library work which she started several years ago. It had been announced today by college officials. Miss Fannie McDonald of Wilmington will succeed Miss Garland, officials announced.

BRIAND MAY RETAIN POST; WILL DEFEND VIEWS TO DEPUTIES

Given Approval Of Cabinet And Asked To Continue Work

PARIS, May 27.—With the cabinet of Premier Pierre Laval unanimously behind him, Foreign Minister Aristide Briand of France has agreed to "defend his views" on international affairs before the chamber of deputies, it was stated in an official communique here today.

Briand's willingness to appear before the chamber was interpreted as meaning he had reconsidered his decision to resign as a result of his defeat in the recent presidential elections, and would remain in office as chief of the French foreign office.

"The Cabinet Council," the communique stated, "has unanimously approved M. Briand's work at Geneva. Premier Pierre Laval has asked M. Briand to continue his work for peace and security."

Briand has been the guiding figure at the Quai D'Orsay almost without interruption during the last five years. His defeat in the presidential race, due largely to the fact that his policies are of too active a nature to permit him to be a satisfactory presidential figurehead, was a terrific blow to his pride, but events soon showed it had not diminished his prestige.

He went to Geneva two weeks ago for the meeting of the Pan-European commission of the League of Nations, a body appointed to consider his plan for a federated Europe, and at the conclusion of the session indicated he would not return. He had previously tendered his resignation as foreign minister, but Premier Laval flatly refused to accept it.

Briand scored a number of notable victories for France at Geneva, particularly submission of the proposed Austro-German customs union to the world court, and it is now believed he has decided to remain in his traditional post, at least until this question is settled and his Pan-Europa becomes an actuality.

THREE KILLED IN SPAIN RIOTS

LONDON, May 27.—Three persons were reported killed at San Sebastian, Spain, today, in a series of clashes between troops and striking communists which necessitated proclamation of martial law, it was stated in dispatches to the London evening newspapers.

The London evening newspapers reported that the rioters forced street cars and taxis from the streets, the dispatches said.

BLAME BROKEN WING FOR PLANE TRAGEDY

CHICAGO, May 27.—Pieces of the big Bellanca airplane owned by the Chicago Daily News found scattered over a radius of half a mile indicated today that breakage of one of the wings of the craft was the cause of the crash yesterday in which four men were killed.

Shirley J. Short, nationally known pilot, Richard K. Peck, Lewis S. Rice and Robert J. Gormley were the victims, all but Gormley being killed instantly. Gormley died on the way to a hospital.

The Handem-motored sesquiplane was on a test flight with a heavy load and was flying about 300 feet above ground when the crash occurred.

BONDS ARE MISSING AT LEESBURG BANK

LEESBURG, O., May 27.—The mysterious disappearance of bonds said to have been placed in the Leesburg Bank, which was taken over by the State Banking Department two weeks ago, was investigated today by state officials.

The bonds were said to represent a large sum. They were said to have been left in the bank for safe-keeping when the bank was ordered closed.

J. C. Van Pelt, state examiner, was in Cincinnati attempting to trace the bonds in that city.

Charges recently filed by Van Pelt, accusing Charles Rodkey, former cashier of making false entries and false reports, recently resulted in the latter's arrest. He was bound over to the Highland County grand jury.

SEIZE TWENTY IN BOOZE RING

KANSAS CITY, May 27.—Twenty alleged members of a $1,000,000 liquor ring operating in seven states in the middle and south west and said to be an adjunct of the Capone ring of Chicago, were under arrest here today.

The roundup of the alleged ring members occurred last night when special federal prohibition agents swooped down on the downtown hotel headquarters of the ring where the group had assembled assertedly for the purpose of arranging a division of profits.

FIVE KILLED WHEN SPEEDING AUTOS CRASH IN PHILADELPHIA

PHILADELPHIA, May 27.—The toll of dead in Philadelphia's worst automobile accident on the Delaware River bridge since its construction rose to five today as John Finn, 24, passenger in a sedan into which a roadster crowded with six occupants crashed head-on at the rate of seventy miles an hour, died at the Jefferson Hospital.

The other dead are: Frank Latshaw, driver of the roadster; Frank Silber, 25, James Willes, 27, and Joseph Macentee, 30, all of Philadelphia, riding with Latshaw in the roadster.

Theodore Klessler, also a passenger in the small car, was injured seriously. Abraham Teller, another passenger, suffered a probably fractured skull.

John Williams, 32, passenger in the sedan suffered a fractured skull and severe cuts and bruises.

Five Ohio State professors, four of whom are past presidents of the Ohio State Chapter of the American Association of University Professors, began meetings yesterday to protest Miller's dismissal to the national organization and to demand an investigation.

POLICE PROBE TWO BURGLARY CASES

Attempted burglaries of a millinery store and a railroad freight office sometime Tuesday night engaged the attention of police Wednesday.

After removing the outside plate of a lock on the front door at the Osterly millinery shop, 37 Green St., thieves were apparently frightened away before they could gain entrance.

Intruders pried open a sliding door to gain access to the office at the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad freight house on S. Detroit St., but although the office was ransacked, nothing was stolen, a check indicated.

For the second time James William Payne, 66, wealthy farmer, from near Forest City, Mo., goes on trial for the murder of his wife because she failed to follow his instructions to vote against an increased school tax levy. His daughter, Mary, chief witness against him was killed by a train, last September, while herding cattle.

RULES GOVERNING MUNICIPAL PRIMARY EMPHASIZED BY CLERK

A municipal primary election will be held in Xenia August 13, for nomination of candidates to fill two forthcoming vacancies on City Commission, providing, however, more than four candidates enter the commission race.

Under terms of the city charter the non-partisan primary election in August is automatically dispensed with in the event the number of candidates does not exceed twice the number of vacancies. Consequently, a primary will not be necessary unless at least five candidates file nominating petitions.

Earl Short, clerk of the board of elections, pointed out Wednesday that prospective candidates are not permitted under the city charter to circulate nominating petitions more than fifty days prior to the day of the primary. The charter also provided that such petitions must be filed with the election authorities not less than thirty days previous to the election date.

Other charter provisions applying to the municipal primary include these rules to which candidates must adhere:

1.—Nominating petitions shall state the name and place of residence of each person whose name is presented for a place on the ballot.

2.—Such petition shall be signed by electors of the municipality equal in number to two per cent of the total number of electors voting in the city at the last general election.

3.—Such petitions shall contain a provision that each signer thereby pledges himself to support and vote for the candidate, or candidates, whose names are therein presented for a place on the ballot, and each elector signing a petition shall add to his signature his place of residence with the street number, voting precinct, and the date of signing, and may subscribe to one nomination for each of the places to be filled, and no more. All signatures shall be made with ink or indelible pencil.

4.—Signatures of all the petitioners need not be appended to one paper, but to each separate paper there shall be attached an affidavit by the circulator thereof stating the number of signers thereto, that each person signed in his presence on the date mentioned, and that the signature is that of the person whose name it purports to be.

The charter also provides that no candidate for commissioner shall make any personal canvass among the electors for his nomination or election, or in behalf of any other candidate. He may give notice of his candidacy by a published notice in a newspaper or by cards for general distribution, but he shall not personally circulate a petition for his nomination, nor shall he by letter or writing solicit the vote of anyone.

The candidate must not expend money in any way to promote his nomination or election, nor by promises or implication, or any other inducement, try to influence voters, although he may answer inquiries by word or letter and may publicly declare his position upon any question in issue either at public meetings or in newspapers of general circulation. Violation of these provisions disqualifies him for holding the office for which he is a candidate, and the City Commission is given the power to determine this question.

Richard Ashbaugh, Columbus, native of Xenia, is receiving congratulations for his design of the decoration of Valley Dale, popular Columbus dine and dance place.

Following decoration according to Ashbaugh's design, the club opened a week ago with Guy Lombardo's music and the Ohio State Journal critic had this to say about the former Xenian:

"A retiring young man shared the honors with the band. This retiring chap's work caused as many 'ohs' and 'ahs' from the dancers as did Lombardo's dulcet music. We bow to Richard Ashbaugh, the local artist who created and supervised the construction of the decorative-lighting scheme of the outdoor garden."

"Black and silver dominate Ashbaugh's modernistic plan. His giant pipe-organ effect as a frame for the hand-shell suggests Hollywood. The flexibility of the indirect lighting system, too, is most clever. The promenade standards and post lamps are unusually clever in design and workmanship."

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Ashbaugh, former Xenians.

JURIST HEARD AT MASONIC CLUB MEET

"Finding Yourself" was the subject of an interesting talk by Judge Frank M. Clevenger, of the common pleas court, Wilmington, at an open meeting of the Masonic Club at Masonic Temple Tuesday evening.

More than 100 members of the club, their families and friends attended. Two groups of vocal soloists were sung by Miss Ruth Alexander, accompanied by Miss Juanita Rankin and Mrs. J. B. Mason gave a group of readings.

Dancing was enjoyed later in the evening with music furnished by Blackburn's Orchestra and several tables of cards were in play for those not caring to dance. An ice course was served under the direction of Jacob Kany.

JUDGMENT CUT

A judgment of $77.14 awarded by R. E. Ferguson, Beaver Creek Twp. justice of the peace, in favor of Russell E. Rosell, R. R. No. 2, Dayton, against Ohmer Barnett, R. R. No. 12, Dayton, was reduced to $33.30 by a jury in Common Pleas Court following a trial Tuesday. Eleven jurors signed the verdict. Barnett had appealed from the magistrate court's judgment.

Device Converts Old Spring-wound Clocks Into Modern Electric

The old style spring-wound clock, of which there is at least one, and maybe several, in practically every home in the community, can now be brought up-to-date by converting it into a high-grade electric clock.

The old type clocks are not only bothersome to keep wound but most of them are unreliable as timekeepers, if indeed they run at all. They are nevertheless kept and treasured for decorative or sentimental reasons, and their owners would in most cases be loath to part with them.

Converting these clocks into accurate, dependable electric clocks guaranteed to keep Naval Observatory time, is a job quickly performed by Tiffany's Jewelry Store, 108 S. Detroit St., and at very reasonable cost. The jeweler simply removes the old works and installs an electric chassis, without in any way marring its decorative charm or detracting from its sentimental value. The owner in fact receives back identically the same clock, but ready to be plugged into the electric current socket.—Adv.

Arrangements for the Zanesville meeting are in charge of Homer

Gratz, Scout executive, formerly of Xenia. Siple will speak at a banquet in the evening.

The memorial services will be at Mt. Zion Saturday morning at 9 o'clock. Address by Rev. Leeming. Mrs. Hina Real is recovering very nicely from her operation at the Miami Valley Hospital last Tuesday. She expects to return home the last of the week.

All over America these steps are being taken in the war against Unemployment

DO not think of unemployment in terms of millions of people out of work in this broad land of America.

Think of unemployment as a few people out of work within a stone's throw of you—your own neighbors. Maybe one, or maybe two out of every twenty in your vicinity. That, after all, is the unemployment problem.

Put those persons back to work and that ends the unemployment problem in your vicinity. Don't worry about other communities. They will take care of their problem in the same way . . . in fact are doing so, in every part of the United States.

The Government Is Doing Its Part

The Government is speeding up its program of public works, wherever this is possible. That means people are going back to work.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Let us hear the conclusion of the whole matter: Fear God, and keep his commandments; for this is the whole duty of man.—Ecclesiastes, xii, 13.

FACING DEFICITS

The deficits the national treasury will face this year and next have raised a doubt in the treasury department as to whether we have yet developed a sufficiently well-balanced system to provide the revenues on which the government must be able to count from year to year. Obviously we have not developed a system of taxation that permits the federal government to balance its budget in lean years as well as fat.

Secretary Mellon discovers the chief weakness of our revenue system in the fact that two-thirds of the federal revenue is derived from income tax, which is particularly sensitive to business conditions. The individual income tax receipts are made all the more variable by the fact that ninety-seven per cent of them are collected from some 380,000 persons in a population of 123,000,000. This worked well enough as long as the curve of prosperity was upward and incomes were increasing. The inevitable consequence of the sudden downward plunge of the curve was the sudden contraction of income tax. As a means of providing against this contingency in the future, Secretary Mellon would broaden the basis of the federal income tax, as well as enlarge the proportion of national revenue derivable from more or less stable excises.

The basis of the federal income tax can be broadened in two ways. A large number of citizens of moderate incomes can be brought within its reach — and the exemption of securities from taxation can be done away with, as far as the future is concerned. The latter expedient deserves attention.

The value of tax-exempt securities outstanding in this country on February 29, 1924, was $12,521,000,000. The federal government was responsible for the issue of $1,539,000,000 of these federal land banks, etc., for $1,206,000,000. State, counties, cities, etc., were responsible for the balance. As early as April 30, 1921, Secretary Mellon had written to the chairman of the house ways and means committee:

"I suggest for the consideration of congress that it may be advisable to take action by statute or by constitutional amendment, where necessary, to restrict further issues of tax-exempt securities. . . . The existence of this mass of exempt securities constitutes an economic evil of the first magnitude. The continued issue of tax-exempt securities encourages the growth of public indebtedness and tends to divert capital from productive enterprise."

Also it enables investors in these securities to escape carrying their share of the country's load of taxation. The exemption of $12,500,000,000 from the income tax narrows the basis of that impost far more than does the exemption of small-fry incomes earned by the sweat of a hundred thousand brows. The holders of tax-exempt securities already issued cannot be tapped; but the issuance of such securities for the future can and should be outlawed.

AMERICANS BIGGER

The "discovery" by the department of anthropology at Harvard that there is an "evolutionary tendency among college men and women to grow taller, broader-shouldered, narrower hipped and heavier," is confirmative of common observation and belief with respect to all Americans, and not merely with respect to successive generations of college graduates, although it is quite possible that as members of a specialized and biologically "selected" class, the development in height, broadness and weight may be more rapid among the latter than among people as a whole.

Why Americans have been getting bigger as the generations have passed, why today a son is likely to be taller than his father, and a daughter than her mother, is rather a complicated question. There are some who give the climate a certain amount of credit for development of an "American type." But probably good food, good living conditions, good sanitation, good medical care and freedom from oppression and repression, are far more important factors in the development. There is no evident reason why physical, social and political conditions that are favorable to the appearance of big men intellectually, economically and socially, should not also be favorable to the appearance of big men physically.

RISKS GREATER?

We don't quite get the reasoning behind the statement by the National Safety council that the pedestrian is, comparatively speaking, safer than he formerly was on the streets, because he is suffering only five per cent more fatal casualties in these days than he did in corresponding periods of time four years ago, whereas there has been a thirty-five per cent increase of fatalities among motorists.

When a condition becomes more dangerous and destructive than it was, it doesn't at the same time become safer. It may not grow more dangerous as rapidly as some other condition does, but a legitimate comparison made between two situations which are both becoming more evil should be a comparison of degree rather than an opposing contrast.

The death rate among pedestrians is not enlarging as fast as the death rate among motorists is, but the risks both encounter are becoming greater instead of smaller. If there is hope for the pedestrian it is to be found in the fact that the casualties among motorists will eventually produce more careful driving as a matter of self-preservation.

QUEEN HELEN

The statement in the official organ of the Rumanian Nationalist party that Helen of Greece, divorced wife of King Carol, has been "ruled out of the royal family" and is now a "private person," may be considered equivalent to an admission that all argument to induce the lady to forgive her notorious, one-time spouse and remarry him, has definitely and finally failed, so that he must go queenless or find somebody who will accept extremely showy goods for the sake of gaining a title.

The attitude taken by the Princess Helen is to her credit, particularly if certain stories regarding the existing domestic arrangements in Carol's palace are to be believed. And if it does not also make Carol's position as king even more difficult than it has been, his immunity from additional trouble will be to the discredit of the Rumanian people.

Somebody has revived the saying by Wendell Phillips that "there is nothing so cowardly as a million dollars—except two million dollars." A considerable number of people are ready to admit that at least there is nothing so elusive.

The peach crop hasn't been blighted in Georgia, either. Maybe it wouldn't be financially profitable to have anything of the sort happen this season. High prices aren't popular.

The French have it all over us in one particular. It doesn't take them two years to decide who is to be their next president.

Bo-Broadway

—By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE—

NEW YORK, May 27.—As they say in Wall Street these days: "Lo, the poor Stock Market!"

OMEGA OF EXCLUSIVENESS

The most exclusive club house in the United States is tucked away over a garage in the East 60's, cost one million dollars and has a membership of seven men.

It was founded originally by a small group of tennis enthusiasts who wanted to have a private court. Other games besides tennis may be played at the club. They have a magnificent card room and a swimming pool designed to resemble the bottom of the ocean. But tennis is the real reason for the organization's existence.

It's a rule of the club that the entire place be turned over to any member who may desire to entertain. As there are no more than seven members, one for each day in the week, the plan works without friction.

With a corps of servants, the most delectable dishes, and their indoor tennis court, the members of the Court House Club feel that they are amply repaid for the minimum of ten thousands dollars which each membership cost and the two thousand a month each pays for upkeep.

PENNY ROUES.

The big money in the penny arcades used to come from the machines where you'd turn a crank and watch Bertie adjusting her garter, or witness the antics of the old maid who surprised a burglar under the bed.

But the poor penny arcades couldn't keep pace with modern sophistication in the matter of naughty pictures and still remain within the law.

That's why the heavy money in the arcades nowadays comes from the strength-testing machines and fortune-telling devices.

Naturally, there is always a slight but steady demand for stereoscopic views of ladies in unladylike attitudes and the arcades still maintain machines with all sorts of alluring labels.

They feature "Behind the Scenes," "The Virgin of Baghdad," "What Hawaii is Famous For," "The Hula Girl," "A Midnight Tryst," "Eve's Leaves," "The Garden of Allah."

But in each case the photo displayed on top of the machine is the most risqué in the collection, and what the customers don't know is that before a series of pictures is released, it is passed upon and O. K.'d by Brother Summer, of the Society for the Suppression of Vice.

THRIVING INDUSTRY.

Penny arcades all over the world are supplied from the huge loft of a concern in the West 30's where machines of fifty different types are turned out.

According to the head of the concern, the industry is experiencing a revival halted temporarily by the Trade Recession.

The yearly amount of business amounts to about a quarter of a million dollars and from forty to seventy-five workmen are employed.

Sewing Machine Inventor

Who was the inventor of the sewing machine? When was the invention made?

TARIFF POLICY COSTS MANY FOREIGN MARKETS, TENNESSEE SOLON AVERS

—CHARLES P. STEWART—

WASHINGTON.—Cordell Hull made a speech more than five years ago in the house of representatives (Tennessee elected him to the senate last fall) the upper congressional chamber's ablest recruit in many a long day; describing the smash-up toward which he gave warning that international business was heading as a result of virtually world-wide commercial policies following the war.

"A feeling of industrial fear or narrow selfishness or both seemed to seize most nations," our own included," he said in the course of this address, "and it was under our powerful leadership that they proceeded hastily to construct excessive high tariff walls, accompanied by the usual ironclad trade restrictions and reprisals."

From the ensuing jumble of "obstructions, discriminations, retaliations, monopolistic combinations, prohibitions, embargoes, governmental licensing systems, bonuses, subsidies, drawbacks, rebates, interferences" and an indefinite number of other "unfair and war-breeding practices," observes the senator, the present depression not only was to have been expected; it was inevitable. He gives trade credit for struggling as long as it could, but at last it is well-nigh suffocated, he says. Resuscitating it will be hard, painful work, adds the Tennesseean.

American producers would not be placed in the position of having overdone themselves, continues Senator Hull, were it not for the fact that their country's tariff policy has cost them many foreign markets which by good rights ought to be absorbing their comparatively small surplus in excess of domestic requirements.

"Post-war over-production, attributed to intensification of our industries' efficiency, has been much harped on," he recognized, "but the truth is," he went on, "that the increase, averaged among all industries, has not exceeded what our population increase justified."

"There has, of course, been a tremendous increase in certain specified lines—but not so large an average."

"The same distinction applies to average and detailed percentages in considering the volume of our exportable surplus. The average is about 10 per cent of our total production, but in some lines the exportable proportion is much greater than that—60 per cent in the case of raw cotton, for example."

"What makes the ruin of our overseas trade so serious a matter," pointed out the senator, "is its disastrous effect upon industries which do have heavy surpluses over and above domestic requirements."

"The loss of 10 per cent of all our industries' trade, while it would be exceedingly unfortunate, would not be so vital in comparison with the remaining 90 per cent—if the 90 per cent really remained."

"However, take the case of the cotton producer—he does not suffer by 10 per cent merely. He suffers to the extent of 60 per cent when he loses his entire export outlet—which reduces his purchasing power by that much; an effect felt, in turn, by other industries."

"The wheat producer, like the cotton grower," proceeded the Tennessee lawmaker, "is hit in excess of the 10 per cent average; he needs foreign buyers for 25 per cent of his crop."

"The tobacco producer's surplus is 45 per cent; the copper producer's, 35; the plate glass producer's, 60."

"The automobile industry's surplus is 16 and a fraction per cent. "It is easy to see how a 16 per cent cut in the export demand for autos must react upon many other industries—upon steel, for instance; and oil; and upon road building and all the industries dependent upon it."

"The textile industry's straits," said the senator, as an illustration, "demonstrates the consequences of excluding our customers' products from our markets, in exchange for products they desire from us."

"India, China and Japan, formerly our textile manufacturers' best export patrons, have been driven to establish their own mills—leaving the American textile industry the 'sickest,' with the possible exception of soft coal in the country."

"Worse than that," added the Tennesseean, "two billions of our own money have gone abroad to build factories in foreign lands."

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

—By MRS. MARY MORTON—

MENU HINT
Cottage Cheese Patties
Boiled Potatoes
Buttered Peas
Lettuce With French Dressing
Strawberries Sugar Cookies Tea
This meatless menu may be served as dinner, luncheon or supper. It will serve four.

Today's Recipes
Cottage Cheese Patties — Two tablespoons finely chopped onion, two tablespoons fat, two cups cottage cheese, two cups dry bread crumbs or cracker crumbs, or corn meal. Fry a delicate brown in a little fat in a hot frying pan. The mixture should be stiff since the cheese tends to soften during the cooking.

Suggestions
Sandwiches for Picnic Season.
A good sandwich has a tastefully flavored filling. Orange and lemon juice are valuable to bring out the flavor of other foods, as well as add flavor of their own.
Lemon juice is an important flavoring ingredient in meat, fish, eggs and other sandwich fillings where added tartness and liquid are desired. Moisten filling with lemon juice to taste.

Orange juice combines especially well with dried fruits, such as raisins, figs, prunes, dates and with nuts. Run equal parts of several of these fruits and of nuts through food chopper and moisten with orange juice to make a paste. Sponge cake slices or cookies put together with such a filling make a healthful lunch-box sweet.

Cottage Cheese: Combine equal amounts of cottage cheese and cooked beets which have been put through food chopper. Sweeten slightly and moisten with orange juice. This is best on Boston brown bread.

Tuna Salad Sandwich Filling: Combine one small can white meat tuna, minced; one-half cup finely chopped celery, one bell pepper, minced; two tablespoons lemon juice, and mayonnaise to spread. A very good filling for a toasted sandwich.

When Cooking Vegetables
Start the cooking with boiling water and salt when vegetables are half done.

Cook green vegetables in as little water as possible, as quickly as possible.

Cook strong-flavored vegetables in a large amount of water, in an uncovered kettle.

Vegetables may be baked very satisfactorily.

Superstitions Replaced

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.—

In England this time of year less than a century ago you could have seen occasionally along the highways a mother and father passing a little baby or child from the arms of one to the other through the cleft of an ash tree. This was supposed to cure the rickets.

This is the time of year when rickets is most frequently observed, and if one could just find a cleft ash tree everything was supposed to be all right. There was a famous one at the edge of Shirley Heath, near Birmingham. "Thomas Chillingworth," according to J. G. Frazer in "The Golden Bough," "son of the owner of an adjoining farm, now about thirty-four, was, when an infant, passed through a similar tree, now perfectly sound, which he preserves with so much care that he will not suffer a single branch to be touched, for it is believed the life of the patient depends on the life of the tree."

If no cleft ash tree could be found, one was made. A young ash sapling was split. The baby had to be naked and was passed through the cleft at sunrise three times or three times three and against the direction of the sun. The tree was then bound up and the split plastered with mud. If the child was cured, the tree would be cured, and if the tree died so would the child.

Nowadays, of course, in the same time of year we not only cure rickets but prevent it by giving cod liver oil or some form of vitamin D. And few cases are now allowed to go on to the state of deformities of the legs or arms. How great an improvement this is over older days can be seen when it is realized that the superstition concerning the cleft ash applied only to deformed children—that is a late stage of rickets.

Superstitions still go on, of course, but when we find an efficient remedy for the diseases the superstitious act was supposed to remedy, they do not have much chance of survival except in the most ignorant districts. Dr. Howard Haggard

QUESTIONS FROM READERS

Mrs. E. G. S.: "What is the cause and cure, if cure is known, of eczema?"

Answer: Eczema is the name frequently used by the laity for a large variety of conditions. The disease which is called Eczema by physicians has no known cause. The treatment is partly by diet, partly by increasing the general nutrition of the body, and partly by local applications.

Editor's Note: Six pamphlets by Dr. Clendening can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin for each and a self-addressed, stamped envelope, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper, or Central Press Association, 1435 East Twelfth Street, Cleveland, O. The pamphlets are: "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene," and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

Signifies Unselfishness

—By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE—

"Do you think a girl would be the happiest with some one she had to give to, or with some one who let her have her own way? Or does this all depend on the persons involved?" asks a young girl, who signs herself "Brown Eyes."

It all depends on the persons involved. Brown Eyes. There are girls who just love to be ordered about and treated like babies and who dole on doing all the giving in. They are what are called "old-fashioned" girls, the kind who used to have hubby's slippers and easy chair all ready, with pipe and tobacco, and asked nothing more than to smuggle up to some big, strong man and listen with delight and awe to the words of wisdom that fell from his lips, never having an opinion of their own.

You see that sort of woman is no longer considered ideal, so the girls with such proclivities conceal it to a certain extent. Girls are supposed to be more independent nowadays, and men generally don't admire the door-mat type of wife. Just the same, these lassies are popular, for it surely implies a sweet and unselfish disposition when love makes a person want to forget and humble themselves before the beloved.

When a person of either sex wants his own way to the time and can't be happy without it, it intimates pretty accurately that that person is quite self-centered and thinks little of others.

The ideal way, of course, is a 50-50 proposition, each seeking to make the other happy and each giving up part of the time.

Don't you think so, Brown Eyes? Young people must be 21 years old before they can marry without parental consent in the state you mention. I cannot find that there is any delay after the license is issued. Yes, a girl may be married at 18 in Indiana without the consent of her parents.

Unhappy One: Always speak to your bashful boy friend in a friendly manner as possible. That will encourage him to ask for the date. He probably will when he gets the necessary spunk.

Boots and Bubbles: Don't let the girl down altogether, girls, but don't be confidential when with her. You might let her know in some way that you know the stories she tells about you and let her defend herself if she can. Keep your tempers, though.

Wondering: Maybe your "little ways" please the bashful young man, and you don't need to try to make yourself more attractive to him. If I could see the way the young man looks at you and the things he does, I might be more able to tell you whether he loves you or not. I should think he might conquer his bashfulness and ask you for dates if he loved you a lot, however.

You can stretch as much as possible and wear fairly high heels to make yourself look taller. But maybe your stature is one of your attractions for him.

Result Of Good Health

—By GLADYS GLAD—

When someone happens to state that it would be a disaster to have a disease of the skin, and yet be in good health in all other respects, I agree docilely enough. For it's perfectly possible. But when someone tries to tell me that a girl may have a healthy, glowing skin, and yet be in poor physical condition, I am forced to let out a far from self-satisfied squawk of indignation. For if there's anything I do insist upon, it's the necessity of perfect health for complexion beauty.

The clear, youthful skin that is one of the outstanding features of Loretta Young's loveliness certainly wouldn't retain its glowing beauty for long, if that damsel didn't wisely keep herself in the pink of condition at all times. And that's true of everyone else's skin, too. That skin health depends upon physical health is no longer a theory. Our many recent experiments in diet in relation to skin health have proved it to be a true fact.

The skin reflects the body's condition surprisingly clearly. If, for example, the circulation is poor, or the blood is low in iron, paleness will result. If acidity is present, the sallow roughness of the skin will reflect it. If elimination of food wastes is not perfect, eruptions will mar the clarity of the complexion.

The wisest course for every woman is to make her body perfectly healthy, and to keep it that way. It's not difficult. Many physicians claim that nature will cure 80 per cent of human ills by herself. All we have to do is to lend her a helping hand by being sane about our rest, exercise, intake of fresh air and diet.

However, I am fully convinced that a yearly visit to the family physician is as important for the preservation of health as our semi-annual trips to the dentist are for the health of our teeth.

EDITOR'S NOTE: While it is impossible for Miss Glad to answer beauty questions by mail, she will be happy to send you her pamphlets on "The New Figure" and "Beauty Culture" if you will write her, care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed envelope and 10 cents in coin for each, to cover cost of printing and handling. For her articles on "Care of the Feet and Legs," 2 cents in coin for each, and a self-addressed, stamped envelope are required. Personal questions on beauty will be answered through Miss Glad's daily column.

SPORT SNAP SHOTS

FRAMED

Now they are starting agitation over at Wilmington to have softball games played with the bases sixty feet apart instead of forty-five.

Sentiment here appears to be divided on the question, but at any rate a petition has been placed in circulation, seeking adoption of the sixty-foot base plan, and it will be (or has been) presented to the softball commission in that city.

It is considered doubtful, however, whether a change will be favored by a majority of the players in view of the fact some of the older men, not as spry as they once were, look askance at the idea of running fifteen more feet to get on base.

Proponents of the movement to make the bases farther apart argue that sixty-foot bases are in vogue in Xenia and Washington, C. H. softball circles, and apparently are meeting with general satisfaction. A Wilmington scribe comes out in rebuttal by saying that "one can hardly pick up a Xenia newspaper without reading where some player or fan wants the diamonds changed to forty-five-foot base lines."

This comes under the heading of news to us. Maybe we don't read this sports page closely enough. Evidently we have been overlooking the comments of Xenia fans and players apropos the sixty-foot vs. the forty-five-foot base line question.

They appear to be starting the softball season pretty late in Wilmington because the softball commission there did not meet until Monday night to arrange schedules for the two leagues organized—the City League and the Fraternal League.

Eight teams have enrolled in the Fraternal League but the second league had only seven clubs—or did have at last reports—leaving it shy one team.

It seems like the only way to beat the Lang Chevrolets is to shut them out entirely and then pray for at least one run. The Criterion held Langs to four runs and lost, 4 to 3. Graham Paints allowed the champions three runs, and lost, 3 to 2, in eleven innings. In the first game of Monday's double-header, the Downtowners held Langs to two runs, and lost, 2 to 1, in ten innings. On this theory it was to be presumed that Langs were due to win the second game, 1 to 0, but the reverse happened for some reason or other and Langs lost, 2 to 0.

Storer Pitches Well For
Winners And Mates
Hit Hard

Making amends for a previous defeat, Central High School squeezed out a 6 to 5 triumph over the champion Krippendorf team in an American League softball tilt at Cox Field Tuesday night.

The Buccaneers lost to the defending title-holders, 8 to 4, in the first round.

Storer, Central pitcher, held the league leaders hitless and runless in six of the nine innings. The eight hits he allowed were bunched in the three innings in which Krippendorf scored runs.

Central High hit safely seven times off Luttrell, Krippendorf hurler, and scored three runs in two different innings.

An error and a double by Pitcher Luttrell gave the champions one run in the first inning, but the Buccaneers, in their half of this stanza, scored three times on a walk, an error, double by Custer and another infield error.

Krippendorf squared matters in the third, clustering singles by Snell, Briley, Green and Anderson to produce two runs.

Central's winning rally came in the fourth when a single by Glass, double by Bankard, single by Ringer and a one-base knock by Confer were good for three runs.

Krippendorf threatened in the seventh by scoring two runs on a single by Luttrell, force out, triple by Gultice and a single by Jones, but Pitcher Storer bore down and held the champs hitless in the last two rounds, enabling the Bucs to preserve their slim lead.

The defeat was the second for Krippendorf this season but did not oust it from first place in the league standing. By virtue of its victory, Central is now tied with St. Brigid for second place.

The Red Wing Co., only unbeaten team in either league, will meet the dangerous Graham Paints in a double-header Wednesday night—that is, if it doesn't cloud up suddenly and rain, as has been customary this season when the Red Wings are scheduled to play.

SPRINGFIELD TEAM MEETS MERCHANTS

The De Luxe Athletics of Springfield, managed by Tom Pappas, former well known Xenia wrestler, have been booked to meet the Xenia Merchants Sunday afternoon at Washington Park.

The Merchants boasted an unbeaten record until last Sunday when they lost to the Dayton White Sox, the defeat being primarily due to the fact the local nine presented a crippled lineup.

Manager Jess Chambliss, however, has obtained the services of three new players who will be in uniform Sunday.

The Springfield team, advertised as one of the best semi-pro nines in that city, will present the following starting lineup: Peel, third base; Woodland and shortstop; Allen, second base; Jung, first base; Woods, center field; W. Gregg, left field; McNaughton, right field; Ferron, pitcher; Taylor, catcher, and Hall, Peck, Jewell and the Walker brothers as utility players.

SOFTBALL TEAMS EXCHANGE DATES

Two National League and two American League softball teams have exchanged playing dates for scheduled Wednesday.

Critter and Wood's Barbers, carded to meet in a National League double-header Friday night, will stage their twin bill Thursday night instead, while the All-Stars and St. Brigid, supposed to play two games Thursday night, will postpone their American League double-header until Friday night.

CLAIM IS SETTLED
County Commissioners agreed Monday, on behalf of the county, to reimburse T. S. Hodgson, 2201 Cameron Ave., Norwood, O., to the extent of $25 for damage to his automobile in an accident near Springfield Valley May 20. The agreement, to which Hodgson was a party, relieves the county of further liability for damage claims.

Hodgson, who agreed to split the cost of his repair bill, drove his auto into a ditch to avoid colliding with a county truck, which turned into the highway in the path of the car.

LET'S CALL UP THE BOLIVIANS

BOLIVIA it or not—Xenia has more telephones than Bolivia.

Take it from Fennell Smith, Cleveland, publicity scribe for The Ohio Bell Telephone Co., who reports that he hasn't counted the telephones in Bolivia but is taking the word of the Bolivians, who should know their own telephones.

Xenia has 2,556 telephones as compared with 2,507 in Bolivia. If Xenia had 200 more it would exceed Nanking, China, which has 2,749 telephones for a half a million inhabitants. So that's a mark to shoot at—the telephones, not the inhabitants.

By the same token, if Xenia had 10,033,024 more telephones it would have as many as Europe, which boasts 10,935,580 telephones, with no one to call up except French, British, Spanish, Czechs, etc.

The United States still leads with 32,600,000 instruments, or 91.5 per cent of all phones in the world, or 164 telephones for each 100 inhabitants. The 4 telephone is the one you think you have when you're in a hurry.

The report is issued here by H. W. Cleaver, Xenia commercial manager.

APPEAL DISMISSED IN ACTION SEEKING TO FORFEIT ESTATE

Motion to dismiss an appeal in the case of Attorney W. L. Miller, as executor of the estate of Martha Siever Oglesbee, deceased, against George D. Oglesbee and others, has been sustained by the second district court of appeals on the ground the case is not appealable.

The action seeks to declare forfeit the life estate of George D. Oglesbee under terms of the decedent's will, for alleged failure to observe terms of the will directing him "to keep said farm in a good state of cultivation and the buildings and fences in good repair, pay all taxes, keep all improvements insured for as much as they were at the death of the decedent, and further providing that 'he shall not sell or convey away his estate therein.'"

The appellate court cited previous court decisions and more recent pronouncements of the state supreme court that "appeal in a statutory action to forfeit life estate because of waste is not within the jurisdiction of the court of appeals," and that "common law waste as to life estate is not recognized in Ohio and is not substantive ground for equitable relief."

BEARDED IRIS GROW VIGOROUSLY

Written for Central Press By DR. KARL F. KELLERMAN Bureau of Plant Industry, U. S. Department of Agriculture. IN FAVORABLE environment, most Bearded Iris grow vigorously. Let too long, they not only exhaust the soil, but form matted masses of roots and one clump crowds upon another. Smaller blossoms and weak growth results.

Dr. Karl F. Kellerman

Division is the remedy for this. The time for dividing Bearded Iris, horticulturists of the Bureau of Plant Industry advise, is immediately after they have produced flowers. This is only the matter of a few hours work and the gardener then has an added supply of plants for enlarging his bed.

Removing the plants from the ground, particularly if the clumps of roots are large, is really a job for two persons, each working with a spade or fork, from opposite sides of the plants. Shake out the soil; then separate the roots with a sharp knife. Each division is a new plant. Before replanting it is well to inspect the roots and remove any decay.

The new divisions will do better if planted in soil that has not grown Iris for several years. Trim off about two-thirds of the fan-shaped mass of foliage before replanting. This gives the roots a better chance to establish themselves. Bearded Iris do best with shallow planting in well-drained soil. The new divisions will be planted deep enough if their tops are just exposed above the ground.

A light mulch to retain moisture is recommended in regions where summers are dry.

NEXT: CUT FLOWERS.

And this must work continuously. It can never rest. Always ready at your command.

Hundreds of men—organized into day and night shifts—are in constant attendance—exercising a ceaseless supervision over the operation of these properties.

ADOPTS FRENCH BOY

A tiny French son, Andre Morel, will accompany Mayor George L. Baker, above, to Portland, Ore., when he returns to the United States after touring France with other American mayors. The youngster, an orphan, captivated Baker, when he saw the six-year-old boy beating a drum twice his size during a serenade of the visitors. Baker immediately arranged to adopt the boy.

MONEY SUIT HEARD HERE WEDNESDAY

Jury trial of a suit filed by Oscar S. Hull who seeks to recover a judgment amounting to $3,222.94 against J. C. Armentrout, as administrator of the estate of James W. Hull, deceased, and Sarah N. Hull, widow of the decedent, was in progress in Common Pleas Court Wednesday.

Asserting that the amount sought is due from the estate, the plaintiff sets forth in the petition that James W. Hull, during his lifetime, and his wife owned a farm of 19.11 acres in Greene County and that $3,222.94 which he paid out in maintenance and improvements on the farm, remains unpaid. The plaintiff charges his claim was disallowed when presented to the administrator.

CHAPTER 50

FRASIER came in on Tuesday and coaxed Mary to spend the evening with him.

"I am not in the mood to be entertained, Martin," she told him soberly. The strain was affecting her. She had arrived at the point where every way she turned, the figure ten thousand seemed to appear before her in fiery and threatening digits. Wellmade Products was still listed at fifty.

"Your mood proves that you need diversion," he insisted. "Can't you see you are working too hard, my dear? All work and no play, you know."

"Why don't you find someone who wouldn't be a really pleasant companion?"

"Now, I ask you if I am not the best judge of that? I shouldn't ask you if I didn't want to be with you more than anyone else in the whole world." His voice lowered to a confidential tone. "Give me a break once in a while, dear."

"I won't ask you to marry me or love me, even, if you will let me see you tonight."

His promise amused her and touched her at the same time. She smiled generously. "Okay, then. But I warn you that I'll not be a very gay companion."

"You will be you, and that is quite enough for me." He was jubilant at the thought of seeing her, having her to himself for a whole evening again.

But when they later sat facing each other across the delicately napered table in a famous Park Avenue restaurant, Mary was so crushed and numbed with her anxiety that she was oblivious of practically everything in the world except one fact. In another thirty-six hours she would owe a fortune for the stock that still remained at fifty, and she had but four hundred dollars to her name.

She was miserable as only a person can be who has ventured far beyond the limits of common sense and is weighed with both the responsibility and the consequences of her folly.

The exquisitely gowned women all around her and their urbane escorts, were only vague components of a colorful setting; the music might have been a throaty dirge in accompaniment to her thoughts.

"Something is troubling you, dear," Martin concluded, with concern. "Won't you tell me about it? Perhaps I could help you."

"That's nice of you," arousing from her impassivity with an effort. "The fact is, there are a number of things troubling me, but I'm afraid you couldn't help me at all. She tried to affect a gaiety that she did not feel, for his sake.

"You shouldn't be drowned in gloom. Business is looking up, you know. Look at Wellmade Products. That should do well."

Mary almost jumped at the word—it was like putting a finger on the vital spot of her painful misery. "Do you really think it will?" anxiously.

"Why not? Are you personally interested?" he asked quickly. "Oh, I'm always interested—especially in new stock. Don't I do most of the advising of our customers? In a way, I am always tense until I know whether they win or lose. Don't you think I should be sorry that I had any part in your investment, if you should lose several thousand?" evasively. He gestured with indifference. "Don't take my burdens upon your shoulders along with your own, my dear. Better let me assume yours, instead."

If only she could, she thought, frightened. When he extracted the bills from his well-filled wallet, with which to pay the dinner check, she envied his utter sang froid with regard to all money matters.

She wondered how anyone got to the place where money was only the means to the end of living instead of being the end for which one struggled and lived.

For herself she would need to worry. It always seemed to be others' obligations that she was struggling to meet. Mary wasn't old enough to know that it is the self-sufficient and capable people who always must drag after them as long a train of dependents as they can manage, even with difficulty.

Mary wished, mightily, that she might experience a sense of security in knowing Martin Fraser, and that his immense wealth might be her last desperate resort. But she knew that she never could accept what she needed and wanted from him, without returning to him that which he wanted from her.

Nevertheless, it was something of a shock to her when he suddenly announced during the drive home, "I have to tell you, I'm leaving tomorrow for awhile."

"Where?" surprised.

"Is it possible you don't want me to go?" hopefully.

"Oh, I wondered—about your leaving just before the new stock issue," she amended foolishly, knowing quite well that stocks might come and stocks might go, but Fraser went where and when he willed, regardless.

"Oh, that!" he dismissed it carelessly. "You or Foster will keep me informed. By the way, if it starts up, get me another block, will you?"

Mary almost shouted her thoughts. "If Wellmade Products advances a point, I will sell you two hundred shares so fast, you won't know the difference. That's what I need—a cash customer." But she only assented quietly. You haven't told me where you are going yet."

"That's right. Well, I have to run out to Chicago to look after some business, and I may stay a month or so—on down to Texas, maybe. I have some old wells down there. But I'll come back any time you say the word, Mary. I'll be frank with you, too. I thought it might give you a chance to think things out—to miss me—perhaps. I know I'll miss you. That month in the winter was endless. But I got tired going the rounds here—I like a change of scene, often. I had hoped, when I came back last time, that you would be going along the next trip—my wife. I told you I wouldn't ask you tonight to marry me—but I do. I shall keep on asking you as long as you are not married to someone else. Will you think about me a little, dear?"

"Of course, I'll miss you, too. I'm really sorry I can't make you happy as you want me to."

She meant it, too. Mary was growing fond of Martin, in spite of herself. Physically and apparently, he was the same man she had known a year ago; but she knew now that under the suave, ultra-modern exterior there was a man with genuine human emotions and a stability of character she never had suspected. He was a man who had found himself, by losing his heart to her. She was sorry that she could not treasure it as he deserved.

And if she had not already lost her own heart to another, and did not know the preciousness of love; how easy it would be to relinquish her own problems to one who was so willing and able to assume them.

Why did the world balance so strangely? The wrong men and women always seemed to be attracted to each other; thrifty, conservative men and extravagant women; or capable, ambitious women and irresponsible men. No philosophy, however, helped her now. Facts, not theories were her concern. Figures did not lie, particularly when they reminded you every waking moment of such a predicament as Mary faced. And her waking moments were most of the nights as well as the days.

On Wednesday night, she almost wished that she need not live until the morning. There was just a chance—one in a thousand or so—that the market would open with an advance in Wellmade Products.

It had closed at three o'clock with the new issue, obstinately, tragically, at fifty.

STARS OF RADIOLAND

Helen Brown

One of the most difficult tasks of any radio artist falls to Helen Brown as her program each week calls for her to portray from two to eight different type characters. She came to radio from the Theater Guild and has also appeared in other dramatic productions.

Banquet For Japanese Royalty To Be Broadcast

BY MILDRED MASON

A banquet in honor of Prince and Princess Takamatsu of Japan at the Fairmount Hotel in San Francisco Wednesday night will be broadcast over an NBC network, it is announced. The banquet will be broadcast from 12 midnight to 1 a. m. Thursday which is from 9 until 10 p. m. San Francisco time.

The Prince will speak in his native tongue and his speech will be translated into English by K. Wakasugi, Japanese consul in San Francisco. Other speakers to be heard are James Rolph, Jr., of California, and Leland W. Cutler, of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce.

WAR VETERAN TO SPEAK

George Gitsky, 82-year-old "drummer boy" who marched with the boys in blue at Richmond and Petersburg, will eulogize the thinking ranks of his comrades in a talk over stations affiliated with station WJZ Thursday from 2:15 to 2:30 p. m. His talk will be "The Passing of the Grand Army of the Republic."

RUTH ETTING IS GUEST

Ruth Etting, headliner in Broadway reviews and Ziegfeld Musical shows, will appear as guest singer with Rudy Vallee and his orchestra Thursday at 7 p. m. over an NBC network through WSAI, Cincinnati. Already this year Miss Etting has appeared as guest artist on four programs over the N.C. network and not only is she popular on the air but also in "movie shorts" and on phonograph records.

PRESENT STORY OF SONG "The March of the Men of Harlech," generally regarded as the national song of Wales, will be dramatized over the NBC network through WCKY, Covington, Thursday from 9 to 9:30 p. m. The song refers to the siege of Harlech Castle in 1465 by the Earl of Pembroke during the reign of Edward IV. This song is generally used in preference to "God Bless the Prince of Wales" or "Land of My Fathers."

"DAME NATURE IS GREAT"

"Try getting up some morning at 5:30 o'clock, it's great," says Murray Horton, popular WLW band leader whose dance orchestra is now being featured over the Cincinnati station from 6:30 to 7:45 a. m. daily except Sundays. "Honestly I never knew much about this thing called nature before we began our early broadcasts last week, but, take it from me it's really great stuff to catch Dame Nature in the raw, so to speak," Murray advises.

Yellow Springs

The commencement exercises of Bryan High School were held Friday night in the school auditorium. Prof. Paul Breese of Wittenberg College, Springfield, delivered the address. Rev. Henry Simmons, pastor of the Methodist Church, gave the invocation and Bailey's Orchestra furnished the music.

The Theater

David P. Sentner, International News Service dramatic editor, writes interestingly of the reception in New York given the Pulitzer prize play announcement.

"The timbers of 'Alison's House,' the Pulitzer prize play, were picked as clean as a bone in a dog pound by critics, actors and gallery gods," writes Sentner.

"In fact it is as difficult to find anyone who will speak well of it above a whisper—as difficult as it is to discover a theatrical manager who will admit he made money this season. The script which grew from a cottage play to a theatrical mansion through the award was moved up from its obscurity in Eva Le Gallienne's Civic Repertory Theater to a Broadway Theater by Lee Shubert.

At its premiere, there seemed to be nobody in the lobby with whom to argue. Only a hostelry magnate recorded himself in favor of the selection on the ground that it would make a swell name for a summer hotel.

"'Alison's House,' by Susan Glaspell, is more of an intellectual episode than a tense dramatic conflict which might be expected from a production to receive the golden apple of a prize dramatic jury.

"True, it 'uplifts good manners and good morals,' as contained in the provisions for the award. But it does a book on etiquette, a cooking volume and the Wickersham report. The shadow behind the substance of the production suggests that a poet's work lives after her. This utterance has long been suspected, if not accepted, in various corners of the intelligentsia world.

"The other reason for the prize, aside from its winning the prize, appears to be that it is the life of the late Emily Dickinson, eminent American poetess. It fails primarily, because there is no breath in the life of Emily. The scenes occur eighteen years after she is dead. Her affair with a married man is referred to instead of portrayed. Her suppression of a raging love is relayed at second hand. Even the contents of her passionate love-poems are unrevealed.

"A far cry from the hard-boiled
